

Rezident: The Espionage Odyssey of Soviet General Vasily Zarubin

BIOGRAPHY/AUTOBIOGRAPHY/MEMOIR

VASILY AND ELIZAVETA ZARUBIN

"From the standpoint of power and importance, there have been but few, if any, representatives of the NKVD in the United States superior to Vassili M. Zubilin."

—United States House Committee on Un-American Activities' statement referring to Vasily Zarubin under his alias while assigned to the Soviet embassy in Washington, D. C. in the early 1940s.

"By the way, I don't know if you really imagine my position, who I am and so on? I'm about five heads up over people you know nothing about."

—Vasily Zarubin identifying himself to Steve Nelson, the organizer and leader of the Communist Party's secret underground apparatus on the West Coast on April 10, 1943.

"She was polite and completely self-assured. She had an authoritative air about her without being annoying or aggressive. Her English was flawless as was her German. She carried herself like an emissary of a great country, but she was ready and willing to talk and understand the problems of smaller people. She was too clever to be patronizing."

—Hede Massing, self-admitted Soviet agent describing Liza Zarubina, whom she knew under alias as "Helen."
